Social Support Resources

Social support is a very important part of re-entry, and these Milwaukee County resources can be utilized in order to give individuals a sense of support and belonging.

Alma Center

“The Alma Center works to heal, transform and evolve the unresolved pain of trauma that fuels the continuation of cycles of violence, abuse and dysfunction in families and communities. We work primarily with men at-risk or involved in the criminal justice system, with a particular focus on men who have a history of domestic violence. Our vision is that healing-focused care becomes a leading approach for re-imagining the criminal justice system, particularly in regard to intervention and prevention of family violence, and moves the system toward more restorative and effective models.”

IndependenceFirst

“Independence First is Metro Milwaukee's first resource for people with disabilities. Provides programs on disability awareness, independent living skills, and recreation. We work with individuals and families for whatever someone needs to successfully live in the community, helping with resources from assistive technology to home modification to personal care or supportive home care services. Independence First also provides programming, whether it's art classes or cooking classes, peer support, and even adaptive video gaming. More than 50% of our staff, managers, and Board have disabilities themselves and this peer-approach leads to excellent outcomes. We advocate for change and inclusivity, and help people who want to stay or move into an independent living situation in their own home instead of institutions.”
